When you get into a political argument with a woman, never tell her your side is as plain as the nose on her face. You'll get in bad if you do.

WOMEN'S CLUB IN WORKING ORDER

Quite a number of Women of Bedford County met in the basement of the Bedford County Trust Building, at eleven o'clock, Saturday, Oct. 30. Their purpose was to finish the organization of the club started last year.

The forenoon session—from eleven till twelve was spent in a pleasant social way and in planning how to make our meetings a success.

At twelve o'clock lunch was served. The invitations read, "Bring your lunch with you", but those who did not heed the injunction were not left hungry, as the Bedford ladies had provided an abundance.

At two o'clock the meeting was called to order with Mrs. Francis Baker as president and Miss Eva Lockwood, secretary, the recording secretary, Miss Enfield, being out of town. After reading the minutes of the previous meeting and roll call, Mrs. Pennell, chairman of the committee on Constitution, proceeded to read the constitution. It was taken up by the meeting, clause by clause, and either adopted as read, or after due consideration amended.

One of the most important things aside from the adoption of the constitution was he selection of a name At our January meeting, we had decided on "Bedford County division Pennsylvania Womans Federated Club", but we found that illegal as the State Federation allows no other club to use this name. After submiting a number of names, a vote was taken and the name "Bedford County Women's Welfare League" was adopted.

..We had two splendid addreses by Mrs. J. C. Lyon and Mrs. J. C. Smith. These two ladies had attended the Convention of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women at Harrisburg and came back filled with a vision of what women may accomplish in Pennsylvania.

The constitution calls for four meetings a year. The next meeting will be held in Bedford, on the last Saturday in January. There will be notices sent to all members and the program will be printed the previous week, in our County papers. It is hoped that every member will be in attendance at the next meeting. The aim of these meetings is to be inspirational, ad we hope to have with us at each meeting women who have accomplished great things in the world and who can inspire other women to do things worth while.

All women are welcome to these meetings. By paying twenty-five cents per year dues—you may become a member with the privilege of voting. Invitations for a place to hold the meeting will be acceptable, and the place will be decided at each previous meeting. We would like to hold meetings in different parts of the County so as to reach as many of the women as possible.

One of the Members.

TWO AUTO ACCIDENTS ..DISPOSED OF BY THE COURT..

The court had before it two important cases to the traveling public this week and disposed of them promptly and efficiently

The one case was that of George Carbaugh, an auto driver of Bedford, who, after pleading guilty to driving an auto under the influence of liquor, was sentenced to pay the costs of prosecution to pay a fine of $100 dollars and to undergo an imprisonment in the County jail for three months.

The second was that against John Pepple, a boy of about 17 years, son of the butcher here in Bedford who was found guilty of causing injuries to Miss Laura Sides of Mann's Chioce by crashing into her automobile above Bedford about May 1920 The boy was sentenced to pay all costs amounting to about $100, pay a fine of $200 and the balance of the sentence was suspended for the present The two sentences were about right. Carbaugh was drunk and Pepple had a record of fast running and brags about it. Young Pepple also faces an action for damages for injuries sustained by Miss Sides from which she is still suffering and no doubt will suffer for years to come.

The Scholarship Committee and Trustee of The Bedford High School Alumni Association will present Musical Comedy in Assembly Hall on Thursday, November 18.

The Bedford people are to have a great treat at Assembly Hall at 8 o'clock November 18, in the form of a Musical Comedy entitled "Hands-Up". But come down and see and hear for yourselves, if "Hearts are Trumps" would not have been just as appropriate a title! This comedy will not only be played by home talent—but has been produced by home artists, one young lady being playwhight and producer as well as "poster" artist, and another lady music master and dancer. Most of the cast contains a list of characters drawn from the B. H. S. Alumni Association but some are still merry maids in high school. Other home talent kindly consented to help in the presentation of this play which will be on the boards Thursday, November 18, produced and presented for the benefit of "the scholarship fund" of the Bedford High Schoo lAlumni Association. The costuming alone is worth the price of admission (50 for adults—35 for children—tickets at Dull's Drug Store.) Secure your reserved seat as soon as possible as Bedford audiences always prove their valor for home talent; and this goes over the top as the great hit of the "private theatrical" season. Don't miss it. The Stage setting, the lights, the costuming, the acting, the singing and the specialty dances form a fascinating dramatic picture that will make the most staid Puritan maid wish to dance all night till broad day light." And remember the Scholarship fund" is very near to our hearts as it is for the benefit of our worthy high school boys and girls.

O merrily merrily
The piper's pipe
The while we dance—the ring!
All merry is the piper's pipe,
Full merrily we sing!

The piper's pipe
(And, O we dance!)
And joyous is the day—
We piper's pipe
(O, the spear and the lance!)
And we're over the hills and away!

P. S. Remember also, that stage builders, light producers, scene shifters and curtain pullers as well as advertisers, all have their part in attaining and producing what we call "The play's the Thing!"

SHOTGUN EXPLODES

Blows off Leg of Little Girl

Wednesday night about nine o'clock while Mr. and Mrs. George Helt with their children were coming home from a combined hunting and visiting home folks in Snake Spring township.

The little girl was riding in the front seat with her father when the gun mysteriously exploded and nearly severed her leg near the hip. The parents tried in vain to stop the blood but when they saw they could not the father made a speedy run for the hospital at Cumberland but the little girl died a little before he reached the city which was about 11 o'clock She was 8 years old and will be buried on Saturday forenoon.

It is only another accident of a loaded gun likely carelessly placed or handled and there are hundreds of them chronicled every year for the people to read and be warned.

SUCCESSFUL FISHERS

My Byers and W A. Butts of Loysburg were fishing at Cypher Station a few days ago and were successful in landing a 25 inch Salmon which weighed 4 lbs. and 13 ounces and measured 12 1-4 inches in girth. Just recently a fellow came to Loysburg with a fish which he claimed the largest fish ever brought to Loysburg. Mr. Byers and Mr Butts differed with him and would like to see the fish that could match the one just mentioned It required the efforts of both men to land him.

CIVIC CLUB MEETS

S. C. Hulse Reports Work at Reservoir

On Monday evening, November 8, the Civic Club met in the basement of the Trust Company Building with an audience of forty individuals—over thirty-five of these being members of the Club. The meeting was full of interest. As announced, the delegates, who attended the recent convention, at Harrisburg, of the "State Federation of Pennsylvania Women," gave their reports to the Club. There reports were valuable and very fine, and, coming from this magnificient Federation of Pennsylvania Women, "The Bedford Civic Club" appreciates the value of federating, and of sending such able delegates as Mrs. John C. Smith and Mrs. John C. Lyon to return and give the Club so many points of inspiration from the outside. The speakers held the close atention of their interested listeners. We are sorry it is impossible to reproduce, here these able reports.

The new president of the Club, Miss Jessie Barclay, appointed chairman to the four Repartments, through which the Club's activities are conducted The appointments for the coming year are Government, Mrs. Ira J. Powell: Education, Mrs. John C. Lyon; Social Science, Mrs. Russell Blackburn; Art, Mrs. Harry Cessna.

These chairmen have the privilege of appointing other chairmen to special committees within their department when occasion calls for such committees.

Also the following new officers are in harness for the coming year: President, Miss Jessie Barclay; 1st vice president, Mrs. Ira J. Powell; 2nd vice president, Mrs. Harry Cessna; 3rd vice president, Miss Cora McGirr secretary, Miss Emily Statler; treasurer, Mrs. John C. Smith. Miss Stella Mann was re-appointed as press reporter.

At this meeting Shirley Hulse, (hydraulic engineer) gave his report of the work done at the Todd Reservoir in September and October 1920. At the close of this report a vote of thanks was given to Mr. Hulse· a rising vote, a standing vote, a figurative "hats-off" vote! and, be assured, the hats would have been literally off if it had not been for the eternal feminine hat pin. At the close of his report, Mr. Hulse very graciously gives credit to the Civic Club for making this reservoir investigation possible, including the securing of funds for this work, etc. but had there been no group of citizens (or no individual citizen) to respond to the Club's spirit and strong desire for a betterment of conditions at the Tod Reservoir, the Club would have agitated this longstanding and very important problem in vain! That the Club did not agitate the question in vain, Shirley Hulse, patriotic citizen, (as well as hydraulic engineer,) is the answer! The citizens of Bedford Borough owe Mr. Hulse a debt of gratitude for twenty years backward and twenty years forward for properly diagnosing the difficulties at the Big Pond. He has been our head surgeon and has performed, gfree of charge, valuable operations, (long needed,) and did this without administering to the citizens of Bedford Borough the unfortunate anesthesia of emptying the reservoir! (The writer does not understand scientific hydraulic-engineering terms and is forced into surgical language) It's "hats off" to Mr Hulse! (with thanks to all who responded with their purses)

The next meeting of the Civic Club will be a sociable "social affair." Watch for the announcement.

"Bedford" (S. L. M.)

Pressure Grouting Todd Reservoir.

To the Civic Club,
Bedford, Penna.
Ladies;—

Some weeks ago the Civic Club, with the approval of the Borough Council, secured in personal contributions about $1,400 for the purpose of experimental work at the Todd Reservoir. The object of the work was to see if the Big Leak could be cut down by pressure grouting and also to discover just where and why the reservoir leaked and the possibility of stopping all the leakage by the grouting method

After considerable looking about a suitable outfit was had from a Scranton drilling concern and a very good arrangement was made with them, considering the smallness of Job and the uncertainty of its cost to the drillers.

The money secured by the Civic Club sufficed for six holes and when these were finished the Borough Council, at the instance of Mr. John Schnably who was in close touch with the work throughout, furnished money for a seventh hole

The drilling outfit was of the sort commonly used in examining foundations or exploring for coal. It was set up on top of the embankment and 2 1-2 inch casing pipe was driven down through the earth to the rock beneat a distance of about 40 feet. After each casing was down the dirt was washed out of it and a diamond drill was used in the rock to the desired depth which varied from ten to twenty feet. The diamond bit not only drills a hole but at the same time cuts out a core, about the size of a broomstick, which is recovered

TRAINING IS FOR DISABLED WOMEN

THEY, AS WELL AS THE MEN, ARE ENTITLED TO BENEFITS OF VOCATIONAL EDUCATION.

THEIR NUMBER ISN'T KNOWN

Law Applies to Women in the Home as Well as to Those in the Hazardous Occupations of Industry Who Need Rehabilitation.

By JAMES P. HORNADAY.

Washington.—Any woman no matter what her work in life, may receive training for a new occupation, if she becomes incapacitated for carrying on her former occupation She has only to apply to the state board for vocational education in states which are co-operating with the federal government. The state boards administer the terms of the industrial rehabilitation act, but they must submit plans annually for the approval of the federal board at Washington.

"The interesting question is," said Lewis H. Carris, assistant director for industrial rehabilitation, federal board for vocational education, "how many women will need rehabilitation? The law applies to all persons, men and women, whether working for a wage or not, who need to be returned to a useful occupation. It applies to women in the hazardous occupations of industry. It also applies to women in the home."

The 1910 census showed more than 25,000,000 women not engaged in wage-earning, but probably busy in their own homes. A woman accustomed to doing her own cooking, sweeping and washing may injure her back so that she cannot continue such heavy work. She may then receive training in some trade which requires only the use of her hands and earn the money to pay somebody else to do her housework.

Classification of Accidents.

The statisticians dealing with this subject classify accidents as industrial, or those arising out of industry or employment; home, or those occurring in and around the home; and public, or those met in public places. They roughly estimate that one-half of all fatal accidents are public accidents; one-fourth, industrial, and one-fourth in the home, and say that of the 45,000 accidental deaths in the United States annually only one-fourth are females.

Accident insurance and workmen's compensation experience show that there are approximately 125 nonfatal but more or less disabling injuries to every fatal injury. It seems possible that women suffer as many accidents in the home as men. They would probably suffer fewer accidents in public places because they travel about less. Women in industry are a tremendously increasing number.

Mrs. Anna Lalor Burdick, agent of the federal board for vocational training for girls and women, says in her 1919-1920 annual report that today there are approximately 2,400,000 women engaged in mechanical and manufacturing pursuits. The report states further that the increase in the number of women workers in the different industries since 1916 is reported as follows: Iron and steel, 40 per cent; automobile, 300 per cent; instrument making, 200 per cent; woodworking, 100 per cent.

More Men Hurt Than Women.

Industrial accident statistics are incomplete, but the few figures obtainable indicate fewer accidents to women than to men The number of accident cases reported by industrial accident commissions or workmen's compensation commissions in certain states between dates mentioned is as follows: Ohio, May 15, 1915, to May 15, 1916, 1,679 women, 80,713 men; Massachusetts, July, 1916, to July, 1917, 6,821 women, 71,487 men; Minnesota, July, 1917, to July, 1918, 1,072 women, 28,895 men; California, July 1, 1917, to June 30, 1918, 50 women, 1,892 men; Oregon, July 1, 1917, to June 30, 1918, 184 women, 12,557 men; Pennsylvania, during 1918, 3,884 women, 148,460 men; Illinois, during 1918, 815 women, 31,043 men.

The 1920 census will answer the question, "How many women in industry?" It will be some time before the statistics are available. Only approximate estimates can be made at this time as regards the proportion of women injured in industry and as regards the number of women so incapacitated by disease as to need retraining. It is possible that the extreme care exercised by women may keep down the numbers suffering industrial accidents However, the point is that any woman incapacitated for service whether by accident, disease or from the deformities of childhood, is entitled to receive training upon application to the state board for vocational education

The estimated cost for the rehabilitation of a worker injured in the prime of life may amount in some cases to $2,000 The saving to be offset against this cost cannot be reckoned at less than $500 a year for perhaps 25 years to cover cost of support during the average expectation of life for an injured worker In addition one has to take account of the restored earning power of at least $1,000 a year On these assumptions the total net profit per person rehabilitated will be perhaps $35,000

HER DAD

By LILLIAN M. RICHARDS

(©, 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Just as surely as spring came each year, with its singing birds and budding leaves, just so surely would Mrs. Natina Newcomb start looking for a house in the country.

To have a little farm, and a cow, with perhaps some hens, was the secret hope of Mrs. Newcomb, who'd been a widow for several years. But her son Ted, a senior in college, advised differently. So each year she looked, but never moved.

Effie Saunders, a young student of music, who, realizing that Mrs. Newcomb was socially affiliated with what she considered "the best people," wormed her way into the woman's affections to the extent of securing one of her rooms during the school term.

"Oh, dear," exclaimed Effie one day to her chum, "I wish father'd give up our old place and come into the city to live, where we could amount to something!"

"You mean sell your lovely home?" questioned the girl with surprise. "Effie! You ought to be punished for suggesting such a thing! Your father has lived there practically all his life; he was married there; you were born there, and your mother died there. Why, I believe he just worships the very ground the old house sits on!"

"That's just it," pouted Effie. "He doesn't consider me at all. I want to mingle in society. Why, my friends—Mrs. Newcomb, for instance—would be shocked could she see father poking around dressed in overalls. And—and sometimes he even eats dinner in his shirt sleeves. Degrading, I call it!"

"Do you mean that you're actually ashamed of your father?" gasped her chum.

"Well—I—I wouldn't want my friends in town to know how old-fashioned he is," she replied, blushing at her own words.

"Then, I'm ashamed of you," retorted the girl, leaving the room.

Effie felt humiliated, but excused herself by deciding that her chum didn't understand. The week ends of her first few months in the city had been spent at home with her father and her old nurse, who was now doing the housework. But lately, she'd neglected to even write, upon receiving her allowance check.

"May I speak with you a minute, dear?" asked Mrs. Newcomb one evening, calling Effie into her living room.

"Yes, indeed," replied the girl, elated.

"Well," began the woman, motioning her to a seat. "Every spring I've looked for a house in the country and never found but one to suit. That one, the owner refused to sell, but I've finally persuaded him, and I'm leaving here in a month. I thought you ought to know, dear, in case you wished to look for another room."

"Then, I won't be able to live with you?" asked Effie, dreading her answer.

"No," replied Mrs. Newcomb, with a smile. "And I have some more news for you. But this must be kept a secret until Ted leaves college—about a month I—I have just married the finest man in the world. A real thoroughbred, of old New England stock. Oh, you'll be surprised when you meet him. He's wonderful!"

Effie was astounded. Of course, Mrs. Newcomb had married some millionaire, and now her chances with Ted would be slim indeed.

One Sunday about two weeks later, while Mrs Newcomb was away for the day, in rushed her son, prepared to take his mother for a ride. As Effie explained the situation, he looked disappointed.

"Very well, then, we'll go," he declared, pinching the girl's cheeks.

"Really?" cried Effie, delighted at having him to herself for the day.

"Wouldn't you like to ride out to your home?" he asked as they started toward the country. "I'd like to meet your family"

"Why—why yes—of course," stammered the girl trying to look pleased.

"Fine," he replied with a sly look in his eyes. "You know, I want particularly to meet your father. Now direct the way"

"Oh dear" thought Effie "I just know dad'll be sitting on the front porch, with his feet on the rail and his sleeves rolled up

"Why Mrs Newcomb!" cried the girl not grasping the situation, as Ted looked on with a grin

"No dear" she replied sweetly, "it's Mrs Saunders now. I bought your beautiful home and then married your father Do remember, I said you'd be surprised."

Fordson

There are many Tractors clamoring for the patronage of the farmer. The very air is charged with the noise of claims. One would think that all the farmers had to do was to buy a Tractor and he would enter into the Millennium.

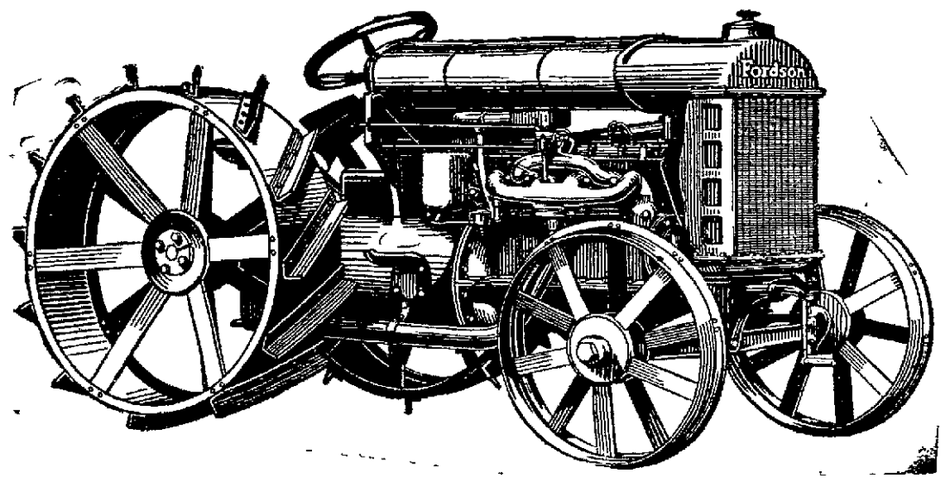

Well, consider this fact—there are a great many different makes of Tractors. Tractors have been on the American market for twenty years. In that time some three hundred thousand Tractors have been sold to the farmers in the United States. The Fordson Tractor has only been on the market two years, and in that time more than one hundred thousand Fordson Tractors have been sold to the farmers of the United States.

Two and two make four. Two and two always will make four. If the Fordson Tractor had not delivered more good work, more satisfactory work, more economical work, than any other farm Tractor, it would not have sold in the ratio of anywhere from five and more to one. "The proof of the pudding is in the eating." The proof of the superior merits of the Fordson Tractor is in its larger sale and use.

The Fordson Tractor then asks you to buy it because of what it has done for your neighbors. It asks you to buy it, one its merits, it asks you to buy it, Mr. Farmer, because you have use for it every day in the year. All the uses for the Fordson Tractor have not yet been uncovered because new placs where machine power can take the place of human power, where machine power can supplant horse and mule-power, are being found every week, and wherever such discovery occurs, the Fordson Tractor will fill the bill more satisfactorily than any other form of power.

The Fordson is simple in design, and it is very strongly made of the highest quality of iron and steel. It is the product of the greatest mechanical genius the world has ever known, and it is most economical in first cost and after expense. The Fordson Tractor on your farm will increase the value of every foot of ground in that farm. It will put more dollars and cents into every hour you put into the farm.

Now why not have a Fordson right away? Take up the subject with us. Come in and get the details and all the particulars. It is only a matter of time until you buy a farm Tractor—that is sure. So don't put it off when it means money to you to act promptly.

STAIN REMOVERS.

A fresh blood stain on wool or any garment can be removed if quickly rubbed with starch, which will absorb the blood and leave the garment unstained.

To remove obstinate mud stains, dissolve a little baking soda in warm water, apply in a circle outside of the spot and work inward rubbing the stain until it disappears, then press with a hot iron. A mixture of salt and flour will remove some mud stains

To successfully remove tea and coffee stains, first sprinkle with borax and soak in cold water, then stretch the linen over a bowl and pour boiling water from a height directly upon the stained places.

To Remove Ink From Rugs or Carpet.

Pour a little turpentine in a saucer and in it shave some good white soap, stir until the soap is thoroughly dissolved. Keep this on hand to apply as a cleansing agent for spilled ink. If applied at once before the ink dries, the spots will disappear immediately.

Cleaning White Spats.

Wash in a basin of white soap and warm water, rinse but do not wring. Hang them up dripping wet over night and in the morning they will be smooth and ready to wear.

To clean blouses—Perspiration stains may be removed from white blouses if they are soaked before washing in cold water to which a little baking soda has been added.

Boiled clothes will come from the wash boiler much whiter if a few drops of turpentine are added to the water.

Berry Stains—Pour boiling water through the stain as soon as possible. If very obstinate and of long standing, hold the cloth over a dish with a bit of burning sulphur; the fumes will bleach the stain from the cloth. Wash carefully after this treatment.

BUSH AND FLY.

"You're a queer thing, bush," said the fly to the snowberry bush.

Far From Pleasant.

"Why?" asked the snowberry bush. "I'm sure I don't mean to be queer. I'm sorry you think I am. I mean to be nice."

"That is what I think is queer," said the fly. The fly moved his legs about and rubbed his small red head. His black body with its six black legs looked very unattractive. He didn't look as though he cared about bathing or anything cleanly in the very least and, indeed, he did not.

"What in the world do you mean?"

"Just what I said," the fly answered.

"You mean," said the snowberry bush, "that you think it is nice to be mean and not to be nice?"

"Exactly what I think," said the fly.

"Why," said the snowberry bush, "I can't believe you are thinking of what you are saying. I simply cannot believe that you are. You surely don't mean it, but are joking with me?"

"I'm not joking in the least," said the fly. "I love to be mean. I simply adore it. All my family always have. If we can carry around an illness we're delighted to do it. The fewer flies there are, they say, the healthier it is, so you see what we do in those ways!

"We like sickness. It doesn't bother us. We're willing to carry it. We like to wake folks up in the morning who are tired. When exhausted people sometimes on a holiday find the time for a little nap on a summer afternoon we bother them so they can't sleep.

"We bother them at mealtime. We go flying about and getting a nibble at the food which is far from pleasant for the people, but we don't mind that. We just adore doing that.

"The meaner we can be the happier we are. We haven't anything nice about us. We never do any kind deeds and we never care for anything that has kindness in it. We're surprised at the great number of creatures and things there are who are nice. Now take even the catchfly plants or flowers.

"You know those lavender and white and purple and pink flowers with the sticky stems? They even try to help catch us at the same time they are being beautiful. They want to make folks happy looking at them and adding to a garden and they want to help folks along still more by seeing if perhaps one or two of us may be caught that way.

"That is the way they are. And you seem to be kindly and all of that, too."

"Ah," said the snowberry bush, "in the spring we have lovely little blossoms and the rest of the time our leaves try to do a great deal of good work.

"Then in the autumn and even into the winter we have little round white berries which give us the name of snowberry bush. They're not so very tiny and they add a great deal of cheerfulness when there are no other flowers. We're glad to do such things as add cheer"

"Strange," buzzed the fly.

"And in the summer when there is a storm and when the sun comes out later the people love to look at us. The raindrops stay on our leaves for quite a while. The leaves are shaped for that. And with the sun glistening down they all look like diamonds and people just love to see us then.

Birds Come.

"Then, too, the birds come and sip up the drops of water and have a beautiful time and they shake rain off on their little feathered bodies, and they have nice cooling, refreshing baths and enjoy us so much.

"Why don't you try, fly, and see what it is like to be nice? You get far more fun out of life if you are. You see such nice things about creatures and you have such a good time being friendly."

"I'd rather not," said the fly.

"That's too bad," said the snowberry bush. "I'm glad there are few creatures like you."

Become Peanut Eaters.

"And what do most animals become after they have been in the zoo a long time?" she asked her class.

Up went the hand of the little boy in the blue reefer.

"Please, ma'am, I know," he chirped.

"What, Maxie?"

"Peanut eaters, ma'am."

MERCHANDISE THAT WON'T COME BACK TO CUSTOMERS WHO WILL!

Most people have very definite ideas regarding the VALUE of things; ideas that influence their purchases of things to eat, to wear or to furnish their homes.

This conception and appreciation of value is deeply rooted. It is the result of commonsense, observation and every-day experience. It is the reason for "repeat" business and is recognized as such by every progressive merchant.

It is worth much to dealers to know and be guided by the likes and dislikes of their customers. The biggest thing in business is the customer who likes your store, your methods, your merchandise; who seldom makes a complaint and never one that isn't righted.

Buy of your Home Merchant or in Altoona Booster Stores

Altoona Booster Stores embody all of these merchandising advantages and those from a distance and in Altoona know that back of the goods stands the merchant himself whose future success depends upon your appreciation.

The Christmas goods showing starts in Altoona Booster Stores on Friday, Nov. 12. This early date has been selected to educate the people to avoid Christmas rush while lines are complete and clerks are better able to care for the wants of those who adopt the "shop early" habit.

SHORT TALKS ON THE FORESTS AND THE LUMBER SITUATION

By Gilford Pinchot, Chief Forester of Pensylvania

NO 13—THE FORESTS AND EVERYDAY THINGS

Few people realize just how intimately the products of the forests enter into their everyday lives. When they do realize this their personal interests in protecting th eforests will surely increase and they will insist on maintaining a timber level high enough to keep forest products within reach of the public at reasonable prices

The clothes we wear, the things we eat, the house in which we live, the material we use in our work, whatever it may be, are dependent to a greater or less degree upon the forest With prices of forest products high, the reflection is felt in increased prices of everything necessary to your daily life and mine

Consider your shoes. They could not be made without the forests. Before you can buy them a calf must be born in a wooden barn; pastured in a field surrounded by a wooden fence; sold to a butcher and driven to slaughter in a wooden wagon; and hide removed on a wooden slab. Then the hide must be shipped to the tannery in a wooden freight car; treated in a wooden vat, with acids secured from wood, and with bark from a tree, the leather must be cured on a wooden board; cut on a wooden board, and shaped over a wooden last. When the shoes are finished they must be packed in a pasteboard box, which was made from wood pulp, shipped in a wooden packing case; and placed on a wooden shelf. Finally the shoes are sold over a wooden counter, and in your service spend most of the remainder of their days on floors made of wood.

But you say, "We don't eat wood". True enough, but the ground that grew your bread was prepared by a plough with wooden handles, and a point of steel in the making of which charcoal was used; the grain was cut with some instrument, be it cradle or binder, partly made of wood; it was hauled to the barn in a wooden wagon; stored in a wooden mow threshed in a wooden separator, hauled to the mill in a wooden wagon; or in a freight car with wheels made of wood pulp; and stored in a wooden bin. When it became flour it was mixed in a wooden tray, rolled on a wooden board sold over a wooden counter, and eaten off a wooden table.

Wood helps the housewife do her shopping. If it is by telephone her message is carried over wires stretched on wooden poles, or encased in a wooden conduit. If she walks it is in shoes tanned with the bark of a tree and largely on wooden floors. If she rides she cannot escape the use of wood, If she carries a basket, this, too is a product of the forest.

In the office, a man works on a wooden desk, sit in a wooden chair, uses wooden pencils and paper made from wood. Our pictures are framed in wood, our windows are cased in wood.

When the doctor comes his prescriptions are written on paper that comes from wood, and his medicines are in a large measure derived from the forests.

Look where we will in our everyday lives we cannot escape the importance of wood in everything around us. When the forests are despoiled, everything that is demanded by modern civilization is injured, and we who consume must pay.

Next to a prosperous agriculture a thing of greater importance to the public than a constant and dependable timber supply. Therefore every citizen is interested in the forests, whether he will or no. From the cradle to the grave he never lives a mute, never draws a breath, without owing his comfort, safety, and welfare to the things the forest gives him or which it helps to provide. From birth to death we live with the help of the forest.

CHOOSING A SLOGAN

When this contest was first considered a few weeks ago, had we known of the vast number of Slogans which would be submitted and the difficulty of choosing the Best One from among so many excellent ones, we would have hesitated about starting anything like this—

Slogans have been submitted from many states and from many counties in our own state

They have been received from Business and Professional Men and Women — From Society Dames in Cities and Villages from Mothers who have written for their children, from School Boys and Girls and their Teachers—

From Young and Old—from Great and Small they came pouring in until our Slogan Box was filled to overflowing. It has been no easy task to choose the one which we consider best adapted for our use, the selection has been made and the Result is announced in our ad today—This contest was only advertised in your two Bedford Papers and the great number of replies received is a proof of their far reaching power as advertising mediums. Another very gratifying feature was the evidence of thought and study in all the answers received—There was hardly a Slogan submitted but what would have been appropriate for our use.

But by far the best feature and the one much appreciated by us were the little words of cheer, encouragement and commendation which were contained in many answers received. We are glad you could and would say these nice things about our store (yours and mine) and for such expressions of good will we thank you, in the name of The Dependable Store,

C. F. Espenschade.

Slogan Contest

From a large number of Excellent Slogans we have selected the one which appears at the head of this advertisement

It was submitted by Benj. F. Mann, Washington, D. C. who sent his Slogans in the name of The Bedford Civic Club to whom a check has been mailed.

PENNSYLVANIA BRIEFS

Since two Uniontown breweries have ceased to operate day and night, the city is having difficulty in finding places for the whistles which call the firemen to duty. The Fayette brewery has been idle for some time, and the Pittsburgh brewery no longer will be responsible for sounding a whistle after seven P. M.

As the result of a collision between a motorcycle and automobile Harry C. Croll, a motorcyclist, has brought suit in Reading against Ephraim P. Wanner for $15,000 damages, claiming one leg is shorter than the other by reason of its being fractured.

Two men are at the point of death, two others are under arrest and one is missing as the result of a gun battle at Front and Penn streets, Chester. The victims, brothers and ex-service men, are Pasquale and Stephen Canardo. Guiseppi Bartolone, according to the police, was one of the gunmen, while Angelo Pulombo, who lives near the scene of the shooting, was arrested with a revolver in his possession. The cause of the quarrel is not known.

It is seldom that a car load of cough drops becomes such a counter-irritant that it sets the whole department of a big corporation to coughing, but this was the case wih a load of drops wrecked near McVeytown while in transit on the main line of the Pennsylvania railroad. Section laborers and a few others filled their dinner pails and pockets from the broken boxes and each in his turn has been called to the railroad office to be interviewed as to who was responsible for carrying several unbroken cartons and several bags of sweet potatoes over the river embankment and hiding them in the bushes.

That State College needs to have its maintenance revenue doubled for the next year in order that even the existing student body of 3000 can be properly and efficiently handled was the gist of information given by college officials to more than 200 Rotary Club members. The Rotarians were assembled for the first meeting on their voluntary pilgrimage to learn at first hand conditions as they actually exist at Penn State. Vance C McCormick, of Harrisburg, a college trustee, said the board was working on the budget, and that in addition to the doubled maintenance required, it would be necessary to expend several millions for immediate building needs if the present character and scope of the college work were to be efficiently maintained.

Arrested while rowing down the Susquehanna river in a stolen boat Joseph Stover, of Milton, told the police he was on his way to New York intending to ship to Poland. Asked how he intended to get there, he said friends told him to follow the stream Stover had $400 in bills and a bank book showing $500 more in a New York bank. He was allowed to go minus the boat.

Although he claims he was asleep in a stable at the time the Hoover distillery at Fairbanks was robbed of seven barrels of whisky, George Stanford, the negro watchman, has been lodged in the county ja... in Uniontown pending an investigation. It is claimed that the whisky taken has a retail value of about $14,000.

Bernard McHugh, of Hazleton charged with larceny in connection with the theft of two diamond rings valued at $4000, from the home of Mrs Kate Clark Price during a fire was sentenced to a year in jail and fined $25

Falling off a telephone pole, Charles Keeler, aged ten, Sunbury, broke both arms, and was taken to the Mary M Packer Hospital, where he almost closed the institution by developing a well-defined case of diphtheria. Contagious cases are not admitted and the hospital authorities were compelled to isolate him and disinfect the whole place.

Vigilance of foresters and fire wardens, who have been aided by residents in the wooded sections of the state has kept the loss from forest fires small so far this fall, Deputy Commissioner Stuart reported. The warm weather has kept the trees dry and many small fires have been reported but were confined

What is believed to be a record in medical annals of the state was established in Bloomsburg when an operation was performed on the youngest child ever on an operating table in that section. The baby of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bullman was afflicted with paralysis of the left side at birth and the attending physician decided that an immediate operation might correct the trouble. The child was just 36 minutes old when a piece of the skull was raised and pressure relieved, causing an end of the paralytic condition The baby rallied nicely from the operation and it is believed will live and be healthy.

Federal operatives are investigating the discovery of poorly-made counterfeit half-dollars that are being circulated in Sunbury.

A bootlegger who disposed of rain water in colored bottles at $1 a throw cleaned up in Mt Pleasant.

Uniontown has forbidden soap-box orators to speak without a license, obtainable only on pledge to avoid seditious utterances.

Mistaken for a pheasant when his head bobbed up out of the brush, near Mt. Pleasant, Ralph Miller was shot by a fellow gunner, but not seriously wounded.

Governor Sproul has appointed William F. Lowry, Berwick, and Thomas J Price and M. G Youngman, Danville, trustees of the State Hospital at Danville.

Falling under a threshing machine being moved from one farm to another, John Baker, of Salemville, was crushed to death.

The fourth section of the Lever act was declared unconstitutional by Judge Thompson in Pittsburgh in reading an opinion from the bench in the United States district court. He dismissed the government's petition for an order of removal of three railroad men to Chicago, indicted there for conspiracy to violate the section ruled against. Assistant Federal Attorney Horne, who sought the order of removal, said an appeal would be taken to the court of appeals for the third circuit. The three railroad men—George W. Young, George A. Howe, and William O. Taylor, of Pittsburgh—were charged with interfering with the transportation of food, fuel, feed and other necessities, and were indicted with a number of others during the recent railroad strike. They were released from custody following the opinion.

Jealousy was the cause of Brookes Butler, of Phillipsburg, Pa., landing in federal court in Scranton, charged with opening United States mail boxes and removing two letters therefrom. Also it resulted in his being fined $25 by Judge Witmer. Butler said he opened the boxes to obtain information as to who his wife was corresponding with. He also admitted that his mission proved a failure. David Griffith, fifteen years old, of this city, accused of violating the postal laws, escaped on parole.

When he slipped in attempting to jump on a moving freight train, Paul, fourteen-year-old son of Gustave Plack, of Lemoyne, near Marysville, was so badly injured that he died several hours later. Both legs were cut off, and trainmen attempted to save his life by tying handkerchiefs and ropes about them until he could be taken to a Harrisburg hospital. He had been gunning with an older companion and had tried to get on the train to go to other hunting grounds.

Franklin county's first hunting fatality this season was that of Charles fourteen-year-old son of Calvin Wiswander, of Montgomery township, who accidentally shot himself in the head while hunting spuirrels not far distant from his home. His brother found the corpse lying face downward.

Following a stormy session, Pamona Grange, No. 5, composed of granges in Columbia and Luzerne counties, in session at Huntington Mills, voted against the program of the state department of public instruction and passed resolutions indorsing the grange program of keeping the schools open the year around. The grangers would have the schools open in the summer for the smaller children, with the older ones to attend the sessions in the winter, when their help is not needed on the farms. This would reduce the number of teachers necessary they contend, and would go far in solving the teacher shortage.

Detective Mc Kelvey found three of seven barrels of whisky, brandy, wine and Jamaica ginger stolen from a Hazleton medicinal firm hidden in a stable. He expects to recover the rest.

After a journey of twenty-two days Narda Caslovora, nineteen years old arrived at Greensburg, from Jugo Slavia, and will marry Lazo Nepolis.

A master at Tyrone refused to recommend a divorce for Glenn W Smeal, whose most serious charge was that his wife, Katherine, was a poor cook and threw teacups.

Farmers who post notices forbidding hunting on their premises will be boycotted when they attempt to dispose of their farm products in Uniontown and other sections of Fayette county.

The Monongahela railroad will start work at once on a double track between Brownsville, Pa., and Fairmont W. Va., to handle the greatly increased coal traffic, incident to seventy-five new companies opening coal operations.

James North, of Hazleton, member of the miners' examining board of the Lehigh district, has quit his job in the Drifton colliery after working forty-three years underground and will take a position outside. His record of inside employment is one of the longest known in this section.

The highway department has revoked its seventy-fourth automobile license, the authorization given Dr. J C. Calbraith, of Waynesburg, being taken away following his failure to satisfactorily explain a violation reported by Burgess Meihen.

John Bonham, of Berwick, and his son Jesse returned from Cole's Creek with a 200-pound bear, nine gray squirrels, a black squirrel and three pheasants.

Numerous thefts of switches and coils from Connellsville automobiles were solved when five local boys admitted that they had stolen them to equip wireless stations at their homes

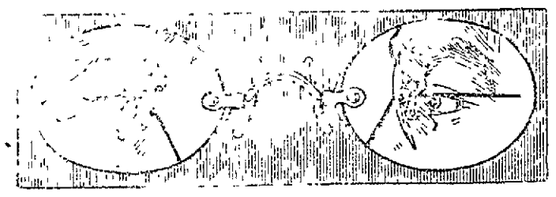

Stricken with acute indigestion while talking to her daughter, Mrs. B. F Kistner, aged seventy-two, a lifelong resident of Northumberland, dropped dead.

Mrs. W. D. DeLong, Reading, and J. D. Whiteman, Mercer, were reappointed members of the state board of dental examiners.

From burns sustained when her clothing caught fire in a bathroom Mrs. Mary Carley Stewart died in the Brownsville General Hospital.

Miss Elva Felter, aged seventeen, of Weatherly, accidentally swallowed a safety pin that she had placed in her mouth while dressing.

Taken all in all, Cypher is made up of just about the same kind of people as other places. We have the same kid of fools as large cities—only not as many of them; the same kind of old maids—each one away back yonder having turned down several splendid offers; the same kind of old bachelors who have always been woman haters; a Postmaster who would run the postoffice different from the system outlined by the higher-ups at Washington, and an Old Miser who is a good deal like other misers—possibly just a little tighter. We also have Geo. Bell who is just a little smarter than other school teachers and who has so far been successful in making the trustees of the Plank Road school think so. Our town has not grown an inch in fifty years and no one cares a darn if it hasen't. With the exception of an occasional neighborhood or family row, we are a happy, contented, self-satisfied people. Among these people you can find several who seem to know it all, and many who do not seem to know anythings. By the use of addition, subtraction, and the process of elimination, and striking a average we figure that we measure pretty well with other towns, large and small.

Ford
THE UNIVERSAL CAR

During all the years the Ford Model T One Ton Truck has been on the market, we have never had one complaint of rear axle trouble. We have had no complaints of motor trouble. As the motor and the rear axle are the vital fundamentals in a motor truck, we have the right to conclude that the Ford One Ton Truck has not only met the demands of business, but has done so in a satisfactory and economic way. There is no other evidence so convincing as that which comes from long practical experience. Ford One Ton Trucks are serving along all industrial and commercial lines. You will find them everywhere. If these statements were not facts the demand for the Ford One Ton Truck would not be large as it is, because people are not buying trucks which do not give service. Coupled with the dependability of the Ford One Ton Truck in all classes of usage, comes the economy in operation and maintenance. On the farm, in factory delivery, for the merchant, manufacturer and contractor, in these days of modern business methods, this worm drive One Ton Truck has become a virtual necessity. HAVE YOUR  EXAMINED BY MY METHOD.

I personally pay very careful attention to the proper fitting of a nose piece or bridge. I see that it has the exact shape and style to fit snugly to the one particular point on the crest of the nose, so the pupil of the eye can exactly conform with the center or middle of the lens, and the object will then be deposed at the proper place on the Retina, and thereby your error in Refraction will be corrected, and you will have a perfect vision or sight, and a pair of glasses that will harmonize with your face. The sight is so often interfered with by disease of the Vital organs, "Creeping disease," of slow progress, the nerves which enter into the eyes, the upper and lower lids, which control the muscular action, very often become impaired by disease, need to be recognized and properly treated. All these are carefully looked after by me with the Opthalmoscope, and by Urinary analysis, when necessary, and my simple and most effective method of examining the Eye for Glasses.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christianity and Physical Needs

In chapters 8 and 9 are grouped a number of miracles which exhibit what the King can do over the chief foes of mankind—sickness, sin, satanic power, death, sorrow and storms. It is fitting that they should be grouped here, following the laws of the kingdom, for they show the King's power to administer the affairs of the kingdom, and produce within his subjects the graces of character set forth in these laws. It will make the lesson too long to attempt to consider all these miracles. It will also be unsatisfactory to confine ourselves to the particular section selected by the lesson committee, so we will select several of the most outstanding ones.

I. Jesus Heals a Leper (8:1-4).

1. This dreadful disease was the most loathsome and hopeless known. In the Jewish ritual it was regarded as a symbol of sin. It was incurable by man. Only the Divine Physician can cure sin.

2. The leper's faith. His cry was most pitiable, but his faith was strong. He fully believed that Jesus was able, but was uncertain as to his willingness to heal him.

3. Jesus' power. He put forth his hand and touched the leper, bidding the disease to depart, and instantly the man was clean.

II. Jesus Heals the Centurion's Servant (8:5-13).

1. The disease—paralysis. In parylsis the victim is helpless and disqualified for service.

2. The centurion's faith. He believed that if Jesus would but speak the word his servant would be healed.

3. The wonderful power of the King. He did not need to go to see the centurion's slave and touch him, but only needed to speak the word and it was done.

III. Jesus Calms the Sea (8:23-27).

1. The King asleep in the storm-tossed boat (v. 24). Since the King is the Almighty Creator, he had no reason to fear, and therefore, could well be resting in sleep.

2. The terrified disciples (v. 25). If they had but known him as really the Almighty King they would not have been terrified, for they would have known that no boat could go down with the Christ on board.

3. The King's rebuke (vv. 26, 27). (1) The disciples rebuked for their lack of faith. Instead of looking at the Lord, they were looking at the circumstances. (2) The sea is made calm. The elements of nature are subject unto him.

IV. Jesus Casts Out Demons (8:28-34). After stilling the tempest Jesus crossed to the other side of the sea into heathen territory.

1. Met by two men possessed by demons (v. 28). By referring to Mark 5:1-7 and Luke 8:27 we get a conception of the desperate condition of these men. So fierce were they that no one could safely pass that way.

2. What they knew about Christ (v. 29). They knew that he was the Son of God and that he had come to destroy the Devil and his works.

3. The limitation of the Devil's power (v. 31). Although the Devil is mighty, he cannot even enter a hog without God's permission.

4. Christ's power to deliver from the Devil (vv. 30-32). The demons quailed before him not daring to dispute his power, but begged permission to enter the swine.

V. Jesus Healing a Woman With an Issue of Blood (9:20-22).

1. Her helpless condition (v. 20). She had been a great sufferer for twelve long years.

2. Her faith (v. 21). Her faith was so strong that she believed contact with the Master's garment would secure the needed help

3. Her confession (v. 21; cf. Luke 8:47) Jesus had her make a public confession It was for her good that he had her make this confession, for faith in Christ unconfessed will naturally weaken.

4 Christ's words of encouragement (v. 22). He told her that it was her faith, not her touch, that saved her.

Proper Amusements.

Thousands of people demand amusements. Thousands of dollars are spent in that behalf. But there is absence of plan, concert and co-operation. The Devil steps in and takes the profit. The people want but little here below nor want that little long. Why may we not have more of the amusement which strengthens and enlightens? One rich man by his own unaided beneficence might provide healthful amusement for a whole city. Why does not benefaction turn in this direction?—Humphrey J. Desmond.

GIVE INCUBATORS BEST CARE

Machines Should Be Cleaned and Disinfected Before Storing Away for the Winter.

After the hatching season is over, clean and disinfect the incubators, empty the lamps and carefully store the parts in the machine. Lamps containing oil which are left in their proper place on the incubator for some time after the hatching season is over will cause trouble when it is started again, as the oil tends to work up into the hood.

The incubator should be disinfected once a year, or oftener if any disease is present in the hens or chickens, say poultry specialists of the United States department of agriculture. Some operators prefer to disinfect their incubators before or after each hatch. A 5 per cent solution of a reliable coal-tar disinfectant or carbolic acid may be used to wash out the machine and to disinfect the egg trays and nursery drawer. If the burlap is very dirty it may be cheaper to renew than to clean it.

For an incubator of about three cubic feet capacity one may pour one half ounce of formalin, which contains 40 per cent formaldehyde, on one-half ounce of permanganate of potash in a pan in the incubator, which produces a very penetrating gas and thoroughly disinfects the machine. The door of the incubator should be closed just as soon as the liquid is poured into the pan and left closed for twelve hours or longer. Incubators should be well aired before they are used after disinfecting, especially when formaldehyde or any disinfectant which produces a gas has been used.

SUPPLY OF GRAIN FOR HENS

Fowls Will Consume More Food in Spring Than in Fall—Amount Varies With Breeds.

The feeder must use his own judgment in deciding how much grain to give the hens, as the amount of feed which they will eat varies with different pens and at different seasons of the year. They will eat more feed in the spring while laying heavily than the summer and fall when laying fewer eggs.

A fair general estimate is about one quart of scratch grains and an equal weight of mash (about one and a half quarts) daily to 13 hens of the general purpose breeds, such as the Plymouth Rocks, Rhode Island Reds, or Wyandottes, or to 16 hens of the smaller or egg breeds. This would be about seven and a half pounds each of scratch grains and of mash daily to 100 Leghorns and about nine and a half pounds of each to 100 general purpose fowls. If hens have free range or large yards containing green feed a general purpose hen will eat about 75 pounds of feed in a year and a Leghorn will eat about 55 pounds, in addition to the green stuff consumed, it has been found in experiments conducted on the government poultry farm.

RID FLOCKS OF ALL VERMIN

Regular Attention and Proper Treatment Will Prevent Troublesome Lice and Mites.

It is absolutely unnecessary for poultry to be seriously troubled by either lice or mites. Regular attention and proper treatment of the quarters will rid the flock of mites, and if body lice are found the birds should be treated for these also. Usually if a place is provided where the hens can dust themselves they will keep the lice in check.

LOUSY FLOCK UNPROFITABLE

Lice Are Detrimental Because of Irritation Caused by Crawling About and Gnawing.

True bird lice of the order Mallophaga never feed upon the blood of their host but feed upon exudations from the skin, epidermal scales, bits of feathers and hair. They are detrimental to the host by causing irritation due to crawling about and their gnawing habit. A "lousy" flock of chickens is not a profitable investment.

RULES OF UNCLE SAM ON CIDER

THEY TELL WHAT MAY AND WHAT MAY NOT BE DONE WITH APPLE JUICE.

IF HARD, PERMIT IS NEEDED

Then It Is Classed as An Intoxicating Drink—What to Do If You Buy It Sweet and It Ferments Beyond the Volstead Limit.

By JAMES P. HORNADAY.

Washington.—"Watch your cider," is a caution put out by the internal revenue bureau, the branch of the federal government responsible for the enforcement of the prohibition legislation "For the benefit of all concerned," the bureau has issued the following instructions:

"Section 1 of Title II. of the national prohibition act defines 'intoxicating liquor,' and the definition is held to include hard or fermented cider containing half of 1 per cent or more of alcohol by volume. Any person desiring to manufacture such hard or fermented cider for conversion into vinegar or for any other legal nonbeverage purpose is required to qualify by giving bond and procuring a permit. Such hard or fermented cider may be sold only in quantities of five wine gallons or more by one qualified permittee to another permittee pursuant to permit to purchase. Full instructions for the procurement and shipment of such intoxicating liquor under permit to purchase will be found in article 8 of regulations 60.

"It is illegal to possess, except in the home, cider containing one-half of 1 per cent or more alcohol by volume without a permit. If a person purchases cider for commercial use containing less than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol by volume, and such cider later develops a greater alcoholic conten than permitted by law, the person so possessing such cider in good faith may apply for a permit to dispose of the same to another permittee, as above provided.

Alcohol Mustn't Increase.

"Where the alcoholic content of sweet cider is kept at all times below one-half of 1 per cent by volume, the manufacturer or vender is not required to give bond or secure a permit either to ship or sell. Such sweet cider, however, should be sterilized or preserved and be put up in sterilized glass bottles or other similar closed containers to insure the alcoholic content remaining less than one-half of 1 per cent by volume until consumption. Cider containing less than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol by volume put up in closed containers by the manufacturer for sale as a soft drink is subject to a tax of 10 per cent of the sales price under section 628 of the revenue act of 1918."

Manufacturers who sell sweet cider in bulk containers such as barrels for use as a soft drink must pay the tax thereon and are held responsible for preserving and marketing it in such manner as will insure the alcoholic content remaining less than one-half of 1 per cent by volume until consumed If the cider is found upon the market containing one-half of 1 per cent or more of alcohol by volume, the burden of proof is upon the manufacturer to show that such liquid contained less than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol by volume at the time it was manufactured or sold by him, or withdrawn from the place manufactured.

Rules for Sweet Cider.

As to sweet cider, the bureau says: "Sweet apple cider containing less than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol by volume may be sold in bulk containers, such as barrels, for use in the manufacture of vinegar or apple butter, without payment of tax thereon, but the vendee must furnish a written order showing the kind and quantity to be furnished and that the alcoholic content is to be less than one-half of 1 per cent by volume, and the names and addresses of the vendee and vendor, respectively. These orders must be permanently filed by the vendor in alphabetical order and be open to inspection by internal revenue and prohibition officers. A label showing the same data as the order must be affixed to each container. The entries covering such sales on the records required to be kept and the returns to be made, if any, by regulations 52 and 53, respectively, pertaining to soft drinks should be in red ink."

Sweet cider direct from the press may be sold to customers by the glass or in other open containers without payment of sales tax, provided it is not mixed or compounded with any other ingredient and is sold for consumption at the place of business of seller or in proximity to such place of business. Farmers and other persons without obtaining permit or giving bond, may take fresh apples or other fresh fruit to a commercial mill for the purpose of having the juice expressed therefrom and such fresh juice of the fruit containing less than one half of 1 per cent of alcohol by volume may be removed for use in the home exclusively.

Dried fruits, such as raisins, may not legally be used in the manufacture of such nonintoxicating fruit juices exclusively for use in the home

S. C. Hulse Report

For examination. In very good rock the core recovered will be about as long as the hole drilled. In very poor rock most of it grinds up and is washed away and only small scraps of core will be recovered In this work we get about a hatful of small scraps from about 75 feet of hole drilled, showing the rock to be of remarkably poor quality.

After drilling, the holes were grouted with a mixture of one part cement to five to ten parts water, the grout being forced into the hole by pump pressure In some of the holes the rock took grout very freely while in others—the rock having fewer and smaller cracks—comparatively little grout could be forced The seven holes took all the way from three to thirty bags of cement each and a total of 101 bags was forced into the rock (The remaining 10 bags of the 111 used were poured into the holes as the casings were pulled.) A bag of cement has a volume of one cubic foot which means that the open spaces filled, in the rock under the embankment, through the seven holes would be equal to a space one foot square and one hundred and one feet long

Observations made during the whole of the operations show that the earth embankment is sound and dry and tight and that it has a tight connection with the rock on which it rests. The leakage is through the rock under the embankment, and so far as we are able to discover, mostly in the first five feet. As has been said, this rock is of exceedingly poor quality, is decomposed and is full of cracks and seams in all directions. We did not find evidence of large openings connecting with the leaks but we did find much evidence of innumerable small ones. The rock just under the embankment may be compared to a sieve. If you have a sieve with water running through it you will not make much impression by plugging a few holes in the sieve but you will have to plug most of the holes before you stop the ater noticeably. This was exactly our experience in grouting One group of holes connected directly with the Big Leak but we made no impression on it till we had forced into the holes the last bit of cement they could be made to take—then the leak dropped suddenly from 9.5 to 6.7 gallons per minute. This, in connection with the reduction made at another point, aggregates a stoppage in the leaks of some 4,600 gallons in twenty four hours.

The results show clearly that it is simply a question of drilling enough holes and of forcing in enough of cement to make the leaky rock tight, although it would not of course be profitable to carry the process beyond reasonable limits None of the holes in the present work were closer together than ten feet. In some parts of the work this may suffice but an average spacing of five feet. throughout the length of the embankment should stop anything from 70 per cent up of the leakage according to the skill with which the work is done This should cost about $15,000 in addition to what has already been spent; it can be done without emptying the reservoir and if desired, it may be done a part at a time as the finances of the Borough are available for the purpose. This method of stopping the leaks offers great advantages in comparison with any other proposed plan because another plan would necessitate the emptying of the reservoir and the expenditure of great sums of money all at once.

On previous occasions I have spoken of the persistent rumor that a spring was buried under the embankment After this work was started two men visited the job with me and showed me where they saw a spring buried. Two years ago when the reservoir was empty Mr. Schnably observed that the leakage had disappeared except for a very small amount at the Big Leak. This indicates that there is a small spring flow at that point as the location indicated by the two men who saw the spring buried would cause the spring to appear there.

While the work was in progress the total waste water was measured and was found to be 67 gallons per minute while at the same time only 27 gallons per minute flowed into the reservoir at the inlet. Of this 67 gallons per minute 50 gallons is certainly leakage and there is almost a certainty that from 60 to 65 gallons is leakage the rest being spring water.

It was also observed that the leakage of four years ago at the corresponding reservoir level was about 45 gallons per minute as compared with the 67 gallons this fall an increase of 22 gallons per minute for that reservoir level in four years. This indicates a serious increase which, while it may not endanger the reservoir because of the heavy clay blanket overlying the rock in front of the embankment, makes it all the more desirable that steps be taken to stop the leakage.

The total cost of this present work, including $144 00 paid by the Borough for the seventh hole, was $1,582,05. Owing to the difficulty of getting a satisfactory helper for the driller the writer, rather than see the work delayed, acted as helper for eight days. This time, at $5.00 per day was credited to the job, bringing the bill down to $1,542.05.

A letter covering every phase of the work in detail has been addressed to Jno. Schnably, chairman of the Water Committee and copies of this letter are on file with the State Board of Health and the State Water Supply Commission.

In conclusion I would say that the Borough may well congratulate itself that, through the public spirit and energy of the Civic Club in securing for this investigation, it is at last known where and why the Todd Reservoir leaks a start has been made toward stopping the leakage and a practicable and comparatively inexpensive method has been demonstrated. If this work should lead to more extended efforts within the means of the Borough and with satisfactory results. I shall feel that my own interest in this problem, during the past four years, has been amply justified.

Very sincerely yours,
S. C. Hulse.

ROOT'S IMPOSSIBLE PUPIL.

Senator Harding's rear platform speeches through Texas furnish convincing evidence that he has not yet begun to consult "the best minds" of the Republican Party, in regard to the League of Nations—in fact, that he has not yet begun to consult any minds at all.

Too much should not be expected of a President-elect who is taking a vacation, but those who hoped that the election would produce a change in the utterances of the Republican candidate are doomed to disappointment. The Harding references to the League of Nations since election are quite as fantastic as the Harding references to the League of Nations before election.

The only new contribution to the subject is provided by David Lawrence, who printed in The Evening World yesterday Elihu Root's telegram of warning to Senator Harding which was sent from London in August after the author had finished his work in helping to draft the plan for the Permanent Court of International Justice provided for by the covenant of the League. According to the text of this telegram. Mr Root insists that "it is very unwise to declare that the League is dead," because it would not be true." He added the further comment that "a new deal here from the beginning by abandoning the Versailles Treaty is impossible," and "to attempt it would bring choas and entire loss of the results of the war and general disaster involving the United States."

This is elementary It is kown to everybody except Republicans and it is known to many of them. There has been nothing else so extraordinary throughout this controversary as the quality of the Republican mind, and in particular the Senatorial mind. which assumes that the peace of the world can be juggled indefinitely to suit the exigencies of partisan politics in the United States.

Senator Harding himself is one of these partisans who lacks the faintest notion of the price in blood and treasure that the Allied Nations paid for the Treaty of Versailles, however unsatisfactory that treaty may be. Instead of spending his vacation in Texas it would have been indefinitely better if Senator Harding could have spent it in Frace in viewing the military cemeteries in which the hundreds of thousands of French, British and American dead are buried. He might then be able to arrive at some sort of understanding of what that treaty has cost and o fwhat it would mean to try to reopen the whole question of the peace of Europe, however flimsy that peace may seem. H might also have learn what the League of Naions means and what President Wilson has been seeking to attain throughout this long controversy against the reaction and militarism for the imperialism that was drowned i a sea of blood

There was good advice in Mr. Root's telegram to Senator Harding, but there is nothing to show that the Senator followed it during the campaign, and his most recent remarks indicate that if he learned anything from Elihu Root he has already forgotten it. The man who still babbles that "America does not need any meeting of foreign powers to tell us what our moral obligations are" does not know what the war war was about or what the peace was about or what has happened in the world since June 28, 1914. Mr. Root has a pupil who still defies all the process of human education—N. Y. World.
